His Mojesty, in his Speech from the Throne, said that the Prince and Princess of Wales had been received everywhere on their tour with demonstrations of the liveliest, affection; and His Majesty was convinced that their presence had served to rivet more closely the bonds of that mutual regard and loyalty whereby the vigour of the Empire is maintained. His Majesty then said that his relations with the Powers continue friendly. The area of the War in South Africa had been largely reduced, and industries were being resumed in the new Colonies. 'My soldiers throughout have displayed cheerfulness in the endurance of the hardships of guerilla warfare, and their humanity, even to their-own detriment, in the treatment of the enemy, is deserving of the highest praise.'

His Majesty hoped that the Sugar Conference would lead to the abandonment of bounties whereby the sugar-producing Colonies and home manufacturers were unfairly weighted.

The accessity of relieving the troops who had most feltithe strain of the war had afforded an opportunity of again accepting loyal and patriotic offers from the Colonies, and futher contingents would shortly reach Africa from Canada, Australia and New The rainfall in India had been less abund-

BEADMASTER'S REPORT.

I have the honour to present the Annua Report on Queen's College for the year twenty years ago and now.

after conducting the examination, I was from an extravagant demand. able truthfully to say to Sir John Pone Hennessy that I was surprised at success of Chinese hoys in coping with the difficulties of the English burguage ; and may add that this impression has not fadea but on the contrary has been confirmed with increased experience. That a Chinese boy should in ave years advance from the study of the Alphabet to an intelligent acquaintance with a play of Shakespeare and a period of English History is to me little short of the miraculous; when due allow-ande is made for the novelty of the simplest ideas, which are conveyed in idioms without parallel in his own language. 4. The chief points of contrast between the Examination held by me in 1882 (which) maturally is indelibly printed on my brain) and the Examination just concluded, are as follows. The papers now are nearly all clean and remarkably well written; whereas twenty years ago these were the exception, the uniority of papers being dirty and abmost illegible. The standard now applied is infinitely severer: in 1882, the action of the gauge was very delicate and sympathetic; e.g. if from a hepoless translat on you l could decipher that the boy had charly correct idea of the original, he was allowed to the Second Master, I have personally on Friday at the Diocesan School-I say it many of our English boys at Home, given to the Second Master, I have personally on Friday at the Diocesan School-I say it many of our English boys at Home, given to pass; in Composition three sentences grammatically correct constituted the test of a pass, irrespondive of subject matter in Arithmetic, there was an allowance for method, which was supposed to comjone for a wrong digit in even a total or product; beyond all this a personal element; was introduced into the equation in the case of delicate or weak-minded beys, or of hoys whose attendances had been affleted by sickness or other cause. I objected to anything but a rigid uniform standard being applied to all slike; and maintained, that in mathematical subjects, except for some slight elerical error, no leniency could be shown. The seyerer standard was 212-

dually adopted, to avoid pressing too heavily
